

PROCEDURES FOR DEALING WITH COMPLAINTS

- For the purposes of these procedures, we define complaints as follows:
  - Complaint means: an approach to the school by or on behalf of a student that expresses dissatisfaction or unhappiness with some element of the student's enrolment at the school. Complaints may relate to pastoral care, accommodation, the education programme or any other element of the student's enrolment. Complaints can be made formally or informally and are dealt with initially through the school's internal complaints procedures.
  - Where a student is unable to access a school's internal complaints process or is dissatisfied with the outcome of that process, they may make a formal complaint via Study Complaints, or to the Code Administrator. This type of complaint is referred to in these procedures as an 'external complaint'.

1. Internal Complaints Procedures

The school has developed procedures for students to express complaints and have them dealt with fairly and effectively.

These procedures

- Are easy for students to understand and follow.
- Are clearly communicated to students and their parents.
- cover a range of complaints.
- provide recourse for students and their parents if they are not satisfied with how their concern was dealt with.

In implementing these procedures, the school will:

- apply the principles of fairness, consistency, objectivity, and promptness when responding to complaints.
- make the procedures easy to understand by using a visual flow chart, and step-by-step instructions, in plain English, as well as in other languages if necessary.
- engage in ongoing consultation and review with international and other relevant staff.
- include clear direction on who to go to for support, and where the staff members can be found.

- identify different types of complaints and the appropriate person to deal with each type of complaint.
- advise international students first to approach the staff member closest to the problem.
- include photographs and locations of appropriate staff for ease of identification for students.
- inform students about the procedures both verbally and in writing.
- make the information available to students via (orientation materials, homestay handbook and wall chart), and to parents via (the international student handbook/orientation materials and the school website).
- remind students about the procedures throughout the year in international assemblies and during interviews.
- display the complaints procedure information in (the international office, esl classrooms) and other areas frequented by international students.
- inform key staff in the school (eg guidance counsellor, deans, ESL teachers, SLT) of the international student complaints procedures.
- inform residential caregivers of the procedures in the written information provided to them, and verbally during the initial vetting interview, so they can support their student.
- let students know that they have a right to an advocate, and make sure advocates have institutional knowledge (policies, procedures, people) and can listen without prejudice to the student's point of view.
- let students know that they may bring another support person with them (such as a friend or family member or homestay parent) during any stage of the process.
- survey students, parents, staff to check comprehension of the complaints procedures and record results as evidence for self-review and update these procedures in response to feedback.

2. External Complaints Process

The school will provide information to students or parents on how to submit a formal complaint to NZQA in the event they are not satisfied with how their complaints were dealt with by the school.

The school will

- display the complaints process information in key student areas in the ESL classrooms, ES1 and ES2.
- provide information about complaints processes on the school website.
- include information about the complaints process in pre-departure information, Student Handbook and (age appropriate) orientation materials.
- inform students of the process both verbally and in writing.
- survey international students and parents to check they understand the information provided about the complaints process and update procedures and communication in response to feedback received.
- inform agents of the complaints process as part of marketing meetings and in the agent pack.

- include updates about the NZQA complaints process and the DRS in international staff meetings or PD sessions, keeping minutes or presentation notes as evidence for self-review.

3. Staff Procedures for Addressing Complaints

The school has developed staff procedures for dealing with complaints by international students or their parents/legal guardians or other stakeholders.

These staff procedures

- identify the key staff involved and clearly define their roles and responsibilities at each stage of the process.
- Determine how the complaints procedures are communicated to students, parents and other parties
- Identify how and where an international student complaint, the steps taken to resolve it, and the outcome are recorded.
- Align with the procedures for students to raise complaints.
- Are regularly reviewed.

In implementing these procedures, the school will:

- apply the principles of fairness, consistency, objectivity and promptness when responding to complaints.
- use staff experienced in working with international students and the requirements of the Code to review the procedures.
- ensure that all staff who may be approached by students with concerns, understand the school's Code responsibilities and have training in how to respond appropriately to concerns or complaints, including active listening, and applying the principles of fairness, consistency, objectivity and promptness.
- identify individuals within or outside of the school who may be appropriate advocates for students who wish to talk to the school about a complaint. These will include a list of first language speakers and their contact details, for all language groups within the international student cohort.
- inform students that the school has access to first language support people, should they need advocacy or support.
- check that the information given to students matches with actual practice.
- hold specific meetings where staff discuss student issues and concerns and identify and address these early, during International Department meetings
- keep records of all complaints received, the steps taken to resolve them and outcomes in each case. Concerns and resolutions will be recorded in eSchool.
- communicate with parents about concerns expressed by their child and how the school is addressing these concerns.
- identify the points at which parties will be updated on progress, and how they will be informed of these updates.
- provide all parties with a written summary of the outcome of the complaints.

- check in with the student and, if necessary, their parents after the matter has been resolved to ensure they have been able to resume student life and do not need additional support.
- refer any ongoing complaints to a different (more senior) person within the school than the staff member(s) who dealt with the initial complaint.
- gather feedback on the effectiveness of the procedures and make changes as necessary as part of the school's self-review process.

COMPLAINT PROCEDURES FOR STUDENTS AND PARENTS

- Students may (and are encouraged to) request advocacy and interpretation at any time within the complaints process.
- When a staff member receives a complaint from an international student or parent, they will gather all relevant information, and try to resolve the concerns in the first instance.
- Where the staff member cannot resolve the student or parent's concerns, they should escalate the problem to the International Director to ensure that these concerns are addressed and resolved.
- Families will be advised of outcomes of the complaints process by the International Director. Outcomes will be delivered in person or by phone, email, or in writing as appropriate to the student's parents or agent.
